Progress Presents Problems For Farmers, Says Dr. Weir

DAUPHIN, Man.—Increases in size of farms and greater use of mechanical power and modern machinery has created important problems for farmers, Dr. W. J. Weir, dean of the faculty of agriculture and home economics, University of Manitoba, stated while speaking at the annual banquet of the Dauphin chamber of commerce recently.

One of these problems is that the farmer's responsibility has increased to establish himself on a farm. "The farmer as a landowner is also the worker and today he is a worker with a relatively large amount of capital invested in his job," Dr. Weir said.

"In Manitoba studies on farms in the prairie region show the average total capital investment per farm is approximately $55,000 and in the south central area (Kildarey) average capital is $29,000."

"Trends in farming over the past 30 years indicate that agriculture is moving away from the status of self-sufficiency to that of commercialization. About 30 years ago farmers disposed of about 65 per cent of their total production through the market. Today this is closer to 80 per cent of the total produced."

Modern tractors and larger more efficient auxiliary farm machines not only perform more work, but also do it more quickly. This change in power and machinery has resulted in farms increasing in size and requiring less labor to operate them.

The consequence is that farm labor handles more land and livestock per worker, resulting in higher returns to farmers. In 1921, average gross cash income per Canadian worker was $927 while in 1951 it was $3,630.

Changes taking place in agriculture stimulated research, and agriculture as a profession outgrew its dependence for advancement on its conception as an "art" and accepted the challenge of a highly technical and scientific field.

Research in agriculture is interesting and stimulating and that is the rapid acceptance of the place of research in agricultural development, by governmental, commercial and private agencies.

"The future success of our pro-grammatical agricultural development will depend largely on the continuing support which agricultural research will receive."

Significant changes have also taken place in the realm of agriculture education, Dr. Weir declared. These changes have been mainly from a practical degree course and instruction in definite fields.

In relation to agriculture on an international scale, Dr. Weir quoted the following:

"Today gross cash income per farm in the prairie region is about 30 per cent of the total production through the market."

Topic of Dr. Weir's address was "Trends in Agriculture." He was introduced by Dr. Fraser and thanked by John Gardner.

TO BUILD HOTEL AT HIGH PRAIRIE

HIGH PRAIRIE, Alta.—Construction has commenced on the new $275,000 Eldon Hotel, to be erected in a frame and stucco, two-story building by 125-foot buildings will contain 40 rooms. A modern cafe and banquet room, waiting room for ladies, sample rooms for travelling salesmen, and cement basement will be included in the structure which will have hot tubs, letter baseball heating throughout.

There will be indirect lighting on the main floor, while acoustic tile will render the buildings sound proof. Half of the 40 rooms will have private baths and the remainder semi-private bath facilities.

How the Blood Transfusion Service Operates In Saskatchewan

—By Your Red Cross

One of the 27,585 volunteer donors in Saskatchewan makes a contribution. A contribution which may save a life or will aid in the fight against polio.

CENTRAL depots are located in Regina and Saskatoon. Trained teams operate from these centres touring the rural areas and cities where Blood Donor Clinics are held. At the depots specially trained staffs test and group the blood. The whole blood or plasma portion of a suitable transfusion is then sent to the clinics throughout the province. Regardless of distance or method of transport, the patient receives the life-saving blood without charge.

At the end of fourteen days any whole blood on hand at the depots is processed into plasma which will keep indefinitely; no blood is wasted. It is plasma that is so effective in the treatment of shock.

Not only does this service mean a great financial saving to anyone requiring a blood transfusion, but adequate supplies of whole blood and plasma available at all times saves many lives.

For one year, 6,800 people met with death in Canada, many of whom would be alive today if immediate transfusion facilities had been available. In one year 21 per cent of all major deaths were due to hemorrhage; three-quarters of these lives might have been saved by immediate transfusion.

Under this plan any patient requiring a blood transfusion now receives it entirely free of charge. Not one penny is charged for one drop of blood! Nor is there any charge made by the hospital for administering the transfusion.

Research Service

Another feature of the Blood Transfusion Service is the Research Laboratory. The Deans of Medical and Dental schools and medical practitioners may submit specimens of patient's blood. Here, special investigations are carried out, sometimes requiring special painstaking research to find blood which is completely compatible. One type of research carried out in this department is the search for expectant mothers.

Another real responsibility has been placed on the shoulders of the Blood Transfusion Service. The blood must be collected by the Society before the next Polio Season. In addition to the daily blood requirements of the hospitals since 1944, Red Cross has been able to collect an extra 150,000 bottles of blood before the next polio season.

What's In A Name?

Ever wonder at some of the odd-named towns?

For instance, if you ever checked the monickers of the towns entered in the Saskatchewan Curling Association you would be up to your eyebrows in towns with unusual handles.

You would find some Success and Unity in Springfield, Drinkwater and Goodwater, but there isn't much of an outlook in Oxbow. Although there are plenty of lakes in that part of the Forget Duck Lake and Fish Lake.

Gums aren't allowed at Snipe Lake but you can always use a Cut Knife to get some Grassway. An excellent Rapideau can be gained from Cherry Ridge to Carrière who was once a scene of Copper dredging.

Certified Seed Available For Manota Potato Variety

For the first time since Manota potato variety was named and licensed by the University of Manitoba in 1952, certified seed is available for sale, it is announced by officials of the Extension Service, Manitoba Department of Agriculture.

The Manota originated from a cross made in North Dakota in 1933 and in 1945 it was received by the University of Manitoba as a second best potato variety in Manitoba and to some extent in other provinces of Canada.

Seed stocks have been increased during the past two years and at present growers have a supply of 5,000 bushels of certified seed. About half of this quantity is being kept by local growers and the rest is being offered for sale.

Ostriches sometimes grow to a height of eight feet.

Do You Know That . . .

The body of a typical adult man contains slightly more than five quarts of blood.

Many Hardy Prairie Plants Introduced By Medal Winner

Dr. A. F. Yeager, who will be among the eighth Stevenson Memorial Gold medal winners at the annual meeting of the Manitoba Horticultural Association in Winnipeg February 18, is being honoured for his "conspicuous contribution of new distinctive hardy garden plants".

Vegetable improvement has been Dr. Yeager's major effort. While growing up in Horace, S.D., in the early days of the Great Depression, he developed bush type tomatoes which were exceptionally early, productive and even-ripening. He has since bred varieties very rich in vitamin content.

His most recent work is a series of the Morden hybrid Sugar Buttercup squash provided prairie gardens with an acceptable substitute for sweet potatoes. An outstanding example of Dr. Yeager's other varieties is the New Haven Maradol, a small sweet potato which is early and sweet.

While progress in fruit breeding is usually slow, Dr. Yeager's skill was expressed within a few years. Pixwell and Abundance gooseberries are now the main varieties grown in prairie Canada. Ruddy raspberry is a favourite canning

Duff Gould of Rosorial managed to cop several awards at the Almond Show in Sacramento, Calif., in February recently. In the producer's section, Mr. Gould was awarded the Dairy Cattle Breeders' Trophy for making the most improvement over the previous year in cow testing. A cash award went to Caligen, a small Duff as third prize for the greatest average butterfat production among all herds under test during 1953.

BREAKS LEG HITCHING RIDGE

LACOMBE, Alta.—Wes Stoeckel, a 16-year-old boy, broke his leg when he fell off the tender of a train on which he had "hitched" a ride.

The injured man was found by town police alongside the railway track here. Dr. W. A. Henry was called, and he was taken to the Lacombe hospital.

Millions For Oil Search

VICTORIA, B.C.—The Southern Production Co., Inc., of Fort Worth, Tex., has announced it would spend $5,000,000 in an 18-month search for oil and gas in the Peace River block of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

A company spokesman said here his firm had completed arrangements with the Canadian Atlantic Oil Co. of Calgary, for the exploration program. Canadian Atlantic has 4,000,000 acres of potential oil and gas lands under lease.

The American announcement appeared to substantiate reports that the West Coast Transmission Co. was winning its fight to gain United States approval of a natural gas pipeline from the Peace River area to the Pacific northwest states.

The U.S. Federal Power Commission is holding hearings to determine whether West Coast or Northwest Pipeline Co. should get the franchise to supply the states' northeast plans to tap reserves in Mexico.

The Canadian government already has given permission to West Coast.

With the exception of the American cuckoo which lays eggs in any honey nest, birds generally demand a special style in architecture. Wrens, for example, insist on a nest box entrance no larger than one inch. This set of three houses meets the needs of those mentioned in this column. The design is a quaint look that gives a good bird house its special charm. They are made from three-quarter inch square and flexible roofing material or linoleum. Trace diagram for sawing the three houses in the sizes shown are complete on pattern 241, page 29. This pattern is included in the Bird House Package which contains full size patterns for making a wide variety of houses and bird stations. Price of packet is $1.50.

The arms and back legs of this chair are cut in one piece from a board eleven and one-half inches wide, and an actual-size pattern is given for each. The front legs are from the same piece. Your neighborhood woodworker will saw these pieces while you, with a few tools, do a simple job of gluing and driving screws. The result is a sturdy chair that will give years of service. The back legs are cut from armrest on upholstery webbing and the pattern gives large sketches showing exactly how the webbing is strung. The back legs show how to make the cushions with corded seams. Foam rubber covered with fabric to match furniture is used to stuff the seat. Sketch for number and enclose 35¢ for each pattern ordered.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Awakening

By R. K. Kent

BILL watched Lolly walk across the dance floor. She looked soft and pink as her sweater. Her eyes always reminded him of flowers. His heart was ached as it would feel smooth if he ached but, she should live so long! Why couldn't she let him alone?

She was coming right toward him. She'd want him to dance, and think he had sweet perfume. If the floor was clean, she'd dance close and he'd have to hold her tight. Well, he just wouldn't dance with her. His feet hurt. He was tired. And he didn't want to bring her to this dance in the first place.

He'd like to go home, but maybe he'd better dance. If he went home now, mom'd get fuzzy and think he was sick. She'd make him rest every night! Growing boy stuff. Mom had queer ideas anyway. The very day Lolly moved in next door, mom said,

Funny and Otherwise

Two piano movers knocked on the door. A meek-looking fellow opened it.

"Did you order a piano from the Flat-note Music Shop?" asked one of the movers.

The tenant shook his head. "Not a piano," he corrected, "a flute."

The piano mover studied a slip of paper. "According to this," he grumbled, "you ordered a piano!"

"Very well," said the tenant nervously. "Move it in. But if your firm makes any more mistakes like that, I'll have to deal elsewhere."

He was attending a meeting of the Henpecked Club. Suddenly the door opened. His wife said to him, "Hurry up, Harry, shock him out of there."

Lolly stopped to talk to an old man now. The old goat, grinning up at her. Let him take her home. Let him smell that stuff in her hair and hear her sandals tap on the floor. Even the old goat was rough with a girl, and mom said that girls are delicate. Bill watched them glide across the floor, Jeff's arms around her, or in the pink sweater. Somebody ought to pop that Jeff. But what he thought of girls.

She turned and smiled at him. He stood up. Now he'd have to dance. And he felt dizzy. He ought to go home and get to bed.

"The old goat," he said. "He grabbed Lolly and danced away with her. Jeff sure was rough with a girl, and mom said that girls are delicate. Bill watched them glide across the floor, Jeff's arms around her, or in the pink sweater. Somebody ought to pop that Jeff. But what he thought of girls.

Bill went out on the club house porch. Too many people were standing around there, so he jumped the rail and wandered down to the golf course. The wind was blowing hard. The bare trees looked like phumes. The grass felt like feathers beneath his feet. Under the willows it was thick and damp. Bill dropped down and dug his hands into it. Music from the dance came to him.

"The old goat," he said. "He let them dance their feet off. Bill dug his fingers so deeply into the grass that he could smell the damp earth. Smelled clean and good. He buried his face in the grass. What was the matter with the grass? He never felt this before.

Bill knew that he couldn't go home feeling this way. Mom would ask questions. He couldn't tell her what all he'd done. There was a queer glow in his eyes, but he had to tell where. He was burning up inside. Maybe he'd better see Doc Hamilton tomorrow. He was a good Joe. Maybe he'd understand.

Bill sat up. The music had stopped. Then it came again, "Home Sweet Home." Jeeps, the last dance, he got up and walked to the club house. Might as well take Lolly home. Even that would be better than explaining to mom why he didn't.

As he rounded the porch, Bill saw Lolly coming through the door. She peered about, hesitated, then started walking toward Jeff Hamilton.

"Hey, Lolly," Bill called, "ready to go home?"

"Oh, there you are," she said angrily. "Where have you been?"

She didn't answer. She was a girl and might as well learn that he had nothing but scorn for stickie girls.

They walked down shady Elm street. The big trees hovered over the walk and made it cool and dark. He wasn't afraid of a girl. To prove it Bill put his hand on her shoulder, and she looked like a Greek statue etched against the light of the grapevines.

Lolly stopped and Bill felt queer. "I'm going to say," he said gruffly. But he stood rigid. Pensive.

Lolly started to move away and Bill put his hand on her arm. He leaned over and touched his lips to her cheek. Jeeps, it was soft and warm.

"We'd better go," Lolly said.

"Okay," he said. They walked along slowly. Bill felt like singling. Jeeps, why didn't somebody tell him that love came to the boy this way?

He stopped and looked up at him.

"You don't have to be a scholar to answer silly questions."

Mrs. Sharp: "My husband has changed a lot since our marriage. I made up my mind about that. He cuts out of my hand now."

Mrs. Brown: "Really? It must save you a lot of washing up!"

The barrister became acrimonious in his cross-examination, but the little woman in the witness box remained calm.

Even the barrister said:

"You say had no education, but you answered my questions smartly enough."

Replied the witness: "You don't have to be a scholar to answer silly questions."

An "indignant" man was shown into a solicitor's office.

"Ready to go?" he burst out.

"You've charged me for two consultations on the fifth of last month and I was only here once!"

"The fifth of last month," said the solicitor, smoothly.

"That was on a Friday and, if I remember correctly, it was a very wet day."

"It was," answered the client.

"Well, after you had gone, you came back to ask if you had left your umbrella here."

GRANT MADE FOR HOSPITAL AT GALAHAD, ALTA.

OTAWA.—A grant of $21,750 towards construction of an addition to St. Joseph's Hospital, Galahad, Alta., has been approved under the Hospital Construction Grant in the National Health Program.

In announcing the grant, Hon. Peter Martin, Minister of National Health and Welfare, stated that it contributed to the cost of providing 40 patient beds at the hospital operated by the Sisters of St. Joseph at Galahad and serving a population of 5,500.

With completion of the addition, a section of the hospital formerly used for patients will accommodate members of the nursing and administrative staff as well as a chapel. Life Of Famous Negro Cowboy Recalled By Alberta Writer

An article in a recent issue of the Vulcan, Alta., Advocate written by W. Bruce Marsden, gives the life story of John Ware, one of the finest horsemen and sportsmen that southern Alberta can recall. For ten years John Ware rode for the Bar U before taking up a ranch of his own in the Millarville district.

His name is still recalled with respect and regard by the dwindling number of pioneers of the eighties still living in these parts.

According to Mr. Marsden's story John Ware was born in Fort Worth, Texas, the son of a colored man and a white woman. As a lad he handled colts for a racing stable, laying the groundwork for his reputation as a fine horseman. But the new land opening up in the northwest United States attracted him. When he was still a young man, he joined a herd of cattle made up in Texas to drive overland to Oregon. Many ranches were opening up in Oregon, and a drifting cowboy usually found work. And when John Ware was new he learned to ride as a rider.

He crossed to the new land of Alberta, and was taken on as a hand by the Bar U, established in the early eighties. Tom Lynch was the foreman of the Bar U and he needed a good hand to drive the horses which had been bought by the company in Oregon. He had to have skilled riders to make the trip, and as he looked over possible material, his eye fell on the young colored cowboy, Ware, who seemed about the right size and drive. Ware was given an outfit horse to ride under saddle. The skill with which this horse was handled brought the coveted trip to Oregon to the young cowboy, and the horseman traveled across the mountains and up to the Bar U. The late Fred Stinson was manager of the ranch at that time.

The first Bar U roundup was in 1883 and records of that year show that John Ware was the best rider, selected by all who forked a bronc, a fine athlete and loyal friend. Every outfitman has a special note of regard in his voice when he speaks of Nigger John, and tales of his superb horsemanship are legion.

In the early nineties John Ware left the Bar U and started up a ranch of his own on Sheep Creek near Millarville. The roundup took place soon after, and the children were Janet (Nettie), Bob, Willie, Mildred and Arthur. Willie and Arthur enlisted with the 10th Cavalry, while Ware died in Keith Samson's as a result of war wounds. Bob and Arthur now are with the railway porters. Nettie and Mildred live with their uncle on a farm near Vulcan.

Round 1900 John Ware and family moved to Brooks to take up ranching and the coules where their home was located is still called Ware coulee. Early in 1900 Mrs. Ware died and in the same year John Ware was killed while hunting in a badger hole and fell on him. It was a strange death for a man who had ridden scores of untamed horses with injury.

It will be recalled that the Ware couple won special mention when they attended the George Lane
